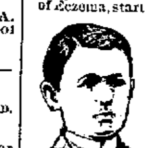
FACE LIKE A BURN

Bloody Water Oozed Out Constantly. No Peace Day or Night. Doctors Failed. Cured by Cuticura.



My child's disease, which was the worst kind of eczema, started on one cheek like a ringworm. It spread and itched so the poor little fellow had no peace night or day. Then it started on the other cheek and chin, until all were raw as a piece of beefsteak, like a burn where you would rub off the skin, and bloody water oozed out constantly. His sufferings were terrible I know, although he was but six months old and could not tell how he suffered. I tied his hands that he would not scratch, then he would rub his poor little cheeks on his shoulders to relieve the intense itching. I had as good a doctor as was in Philadelphia, but he failed to relieve him. I read of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and at once purchased them. Strange to say that very night he rested without scratching his face, and from that on he improved and soon was entirely cured. I would like anyone suffering from this terrible disease to see my boy, who is in his twelfth year now. His complexion is as clear and smooth as can be. This is an unsolicited testimonial, and every word is true. I thank God for my child's recovery, and I thank the manufacturer of CUTICURA.

The Silver Dollar.

The following is the chronological history of the silver dollar.

First authorized to be coined April 2, 1792, weight, 416 grains, fineness, 892.3.

Weight changed, act of January 18, 1837, to 415 1-2 grains.

Fineness changed, act of January 18, 1837, to 900.

Coinage discontinued, act of February 12, 1873.

Total amount coined February 12, 1873, $8,031,238.

Coinage re-authorized, act of February 28, 1878.

Amount coined from March 1, 1878 to December 31, 1888, $282,295,357, (including $1,837 re-coined.)

Total amount coined to December 31, 1889, $357,969,239.

The first silver dollar was put in circulation in 1793. "It was a crude design," says a historian. "On the obverse or face of the coin was imprinted the head of a young lady facing to the right. Her hair was flowing to such an extent that she looked as if taken in a gale of wind."

The fifteen stars were after this reduced to the original thirteen in recognition of the number of states.

In 1836 the design was again changed and the silver dollar bore the full figure of a neatly dressed woman in a flowing garment. The designer forgot, however, to put in the thirteen stars and the coin was soon called in. Any person now in possession of one of these dollars has a valuable souvenir.

The new design had the lady surrounded by the stars. It was an improvement on its predecessor, but the air of the female figure was defiant and stiff.

The dollar of 1838 was the first artistic piece of silver coined by the United States mint.

On April 22, 1864 the first dollar having the legend "In God we trust," was coined.

In 1873 the era of the trade dollar of 900 fineness began. That troublesome dollar ran its erratic course in just five years.

In 1878 the liberty dollar made its appearance. Miss Anna W. Williams, a teacher in the Girl's Normal School at Philadelphia, sat for the portrait, her profile being then considered the most perfect obtainable. Her classic features still decorate the silver dollar.—Ex.

One of the Heroes.

THE MOST HEROIC CHARGE OF HISTORY.

Harper's Weekly, in a recent issue, gives the following account of the charge of the First Minnesota at Gettysburg: it saved the day, and is considered the most heroic charge authenticated in history. It excels the Old Guard at Waterloo, and that of the "gallant Six Hundred" at Balaklava.

The hot July sun was zenith-high upon the field of Gettysburg that direful day in the midst of the fiercest battle of the centuries. Gallant General Hancock, reaching the spot where the Union line was being forced backward, halting his furiously ridden horse, called out:

"What regiment is that?"

"The First Minnesota."

"Charge those lines!"

A charge into eternity that order meant. At double quick, without discharging a gun, with the concentrated fire of the Confederate army pouring a leaden rain of death upon them—at double-quick, then at full speed, they charged into the enemy's advancing ranks. General Hancock saw that a five minutes' respite meant the arrival of re-inforcements and a turning of the tide of battle. He sacrificed this noble regiment in those fearful five minutes, and the position was held. The charge saved the day, but eighty-two per cent. of the men who made the charge were left on the field. Nearly every officer was dead or mortally wounded. Of the 262 men who made the charge, 215 were shot down by the bullets of the enemy; 47 were still in line.

Among those who went forward in this wonderful charge was a young soldier of the name of Lochren, of Minnesota, now Commissioner of Pensions, placed in that responsible office to make the Pension roll a "Roll of Honor." What more appropriate man could have been selected for such a position? He is charged with not being a friend of the soldier, and even worse appellations have been hurled at him; but if Judge Lochren be not a friend of the soldier, where shall we look for one?—Doylestown Democrat.

The Tariff Policy.

Knowing that a revision of the tariff laws is intended within the existence of the present administration some Republicans are loudly calling for delay, when they should know that the sooner the policy of the government is outlined definitely the more quickly business will revive from the state of uncertainty into which it was thrown by bad financial legislation. The Democratic leaders are going to put the tariff figures where they will sustain the health of business of all kinds in a permanent line of progress, where it cannot be shattered by any local illness that may attack it. Inflation is unhealthy. High war tariff in times of peace feeds inflation, and leads up to a crash. It has done it and would continue to do it. Tariff established on the line of reform as contemplated would give the people an opportunity to build their plans on a definite basis. It being practically certain that the act of the House in repealing the Silver Purchase law will be promptly followed by the Senate in the same direction, that mistake may be considered as set right. Business will revive. Then, the tariff policy being speedily outlined, plans for full, permanent recovery of industrial pursuits can follow on a sure, reliable basis.

A NEW MESSAGE.—It was not without meaning that the hilts of some swords were put into the metal of the Columbian Liberty bell, which is to ring in the victories of peace and international brotherhood. "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another," is the inscription around its rim. —Phila. Ledger.

THE TRAVELED MEN.
ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

Sometimes I wish the railroads all were torn out,
The ships all sunk among the coral strands,
I am so very weary, yes, so worn out
With tales of those who visit foreign lands.

When asked to dine, to meet these traveled people,
My soup seems brewed from cemetery bones,
The fish grow cold on some cathedral steeple,
I miss two courses, while I stare at thrones.

I'm forced to leave my salad quite untasted,
Some musty mouldy temple to explore;
The ices, fruit and coffee, too, are wasted,
While into realms of ancient art I soar.

I'd rather take my chance of life and reason,
If in a den of lions I were hurled,
Than for a single year, aye, for one season,
To dwell with folks who've traveled round the world.

They are so patronizingly oppressive
With pity for the ones who stay at home;
Their knowledge is so mighty and aggressive,
I often wish they had not ceased to roam.

They loathe the new, they quite detest the Present,
The old they love—they revel in the Past.
Just dare to say America is pleasant—
And die beneath the glances they will cast.

They are increasing at a rate alarming;
Go where I will the traveled man is there.
He'll force me yet to find those rustics charming,
Who know no world beyond their meadow fair.

Bull and Bicycle.

In the early autumn of 1892, C. and I were riding our good wheels through Evangeline's land. We were rolling lazily along a well-kept, level highway and blessing the efficient roadmakers of Nova Scotia. Ahead of us, across a wide flashing water, the storied expanse at Minas, towered the blue-black bastion of Cape Blomidon, capped with rolling vapors. To our left and behind us rose fair, rounded hills, some thickly wooded, others with orchards and meadows on their slopes, while to our right lay far unrolled those rich diked lands which the vanished Acadian farmers of old won back from the sea.

Though another race now held these lovely regions, we felt that the landscape, through whatever vicissitudes, must lie changelessly under the spell of one enchantment, the touch of the beloved poet. We felt that something more than mere beauty of scene, however wonderful, was needed to explain the exalted mood which had taken possession of two hungry and athletic wheelmen like ourselves, and we acknowledged that additional something in the romance of history and song.

Presently we came to a stretch of road which had been treated to a generous top dressing of loose sand. Such ignorance of the principles of good roadmaking soon brought us down both from our lofty mood and from our laboring wheels. We trudged toilsomely for nearly half a mile, saying unkind things now of the Nova Scotian roadmakers and quite forgetting the melodious sorrows of the Acadian exiles.

Then we came to the village of Port Avon and were much solaced by the sight of the village inn.

In the porch of the unpretentious hostelry we found a fellow cycler, in a sorely battered condition. Several strips of court-plaster, black and pink, distributed artistically about his forehead, nose and chin, gave a mightily grotesque appearance to his otherwise melancholy countenance. One of his stockings was rolled down about his ankle, and he was busy applying arnica to a badly bruised shin.

Against the bench on which he was sitting leaned a bicycle, which looked as if it had been in collision with an earthquake.

The poor fellow's woebegone countenance brightened up as we entered, and we made ourselves acquainted. He was a solitary tourist from Eastport, Me., and a principal in the important case of Bull versus Bicycle, which had just been decided very much in the favor of Bull. We dined together, and as our appetite diminished our curiosity increased.

Presently Caldwell, as the woebegone cyclist called himself, detailed to us his misadventure as follows:

"It wasn't more than an hour before you fellows came that I got here myself. I was in a nice mess, I can tell you, but plenty of cold water and Mrs. Brigg's arnica and court-plaster have pulled me together a lot. I only hope we can do as much after dinner for that poor old wheel of mine.

"This morning I had a fine trip pretty nearly all the way from Hanston. Splendid weather, wasn't it? and a good, hard road most of the way, eh? You remember that long smooth hill about two miles back from here and the road that crosses it at the fort nearly at right angles? Well, as I came coasting down that hill, happy as a clam, my feet over the handles, I almost ran into a party of men with ropes and a gun, moving along that crossroad.

"I stopped for a little talk with them and asked what they were up to. It appeared that a very dangerous bull had got loose from a farm up the river and had taken to the road. They were afraid it would gore somebody before they could recapture it. I asked them if they knew which way it had gone, and they told me the 'critter' was sure to make right for the dike lands where it used to pasture in its earlier and more amiable days.

"That crossroad was the way to the dikes and they pursued it confidently, I took it into my head that it would be a lark to go along with them and see the capture of the obstreperous animal, but the men, who were intelligent fellows and knew what they were talking about, told me I should find the road too heavy and rough for my wheel. Rather reluctantly I bade them good morning and continued my journey by the highway.

Now, as a fact, that bull had no notion of going to the dikes. He had turned off the crossroad and sauntered along the highway, just where he could get the most fun and see the most of life. But I'll venture to say he hadn't counted on meeting a bicycle.

I hadn't gone more than half a mile, or perhaps less, when a little ahead of me I noticed some cattle feeding by the roadside. I thought nothing of that of course, but presently one of the cattle, a tremendous animal, almost pure white—stepped into the middle of the road and began to paw the mud. Certain anxious questions arose within me.

"Then the animal put his great head to the earth and uttered a mighty bellow. With much pertubation of spirit I concluded that the angry bull had not betaken himself to the dikes after all.

I felt very bitter towards those men for this mistake and for not having suffered me to go along with them on their futile errand. They wanted the bull and wouldn't find him. I, on the other hand, had found him, and I didn't want him at all.

"I checked my course, pedaling very slowly, uncertain what to do. The bull stood watching me. If I turned and made tracks, he would catch me on the hill or on the soft crossroad. If I took to the woods there was little to gain, for there were no fences behind which to take refuge, and if I should climb a tree I knew that the beast would demolish my wheel.

"Straight ahead, however, as far as I could see, the road was level and good, and in the distance I saw farms and fences. I decided to keep right on.

"The road along there is wide and hard, as you know, and bordered with a deep ditch. I put on good speed, and the bull as he saw me approaching, looked a little puzzled. He took the wheel and me, I presume, for some unheard of monster. I guessed his meditations and concluded he was getting frightened.

"But there I was mistaken. He was only getting in a rage. He suddenly concluded that it was his mission to rid the world of monsters, and with a roar he charged down to meet me.

"'Now,' thought I, 'for a trick, and then a race in which I will show a pretty speedy pair of heels!' I rode straight at the bull, who must have had strange misgivings, though he never flinched. At the last possible moment I swerved sharply aside and swept past the baffled animal in a fine, triumphant curve. Before he could stop himself and turn I was away down the road at a pace that I knew would try his mettle.

"But the brute had a most pernicious energy. He came thundering and pounding along my tracks at a rate that kept me quite busy. I staid ahead easily enough, but I did not do much more than that for fear of getting winded.

"There's where I made the mistake, I think I ought to have done my utmost in order to discourage and distance my pursuer. I didn't allow for contingencies ahead, but just pedaled along gayly and enjoyed the situation. Of course I kept a sharp lookout in order that I shouldn't take a header over a stone, but I felt myself master of the situation.

"At last, and in an evil hour, I came to where they had been mending the road with all that abominable sand. Let us pass over my feelings at this spot. They were indescribable. My wheel almost came to a standstill. Then I called fresh energies and bent forward and strained to the task. I went ahead, but it was like wading through a featherbed, and the bull began to draw nearer.

"A little in front the fences began. The first was a high board fence with a gate in it and a hay road leading by a rough bridge into the highway. My whole effort now was to make that gate.

"The perspiration was rolling down my face, half blinding me. My mighty pursuer was getting closer and closer, and I was feeling pretty well pumped. It was as much as a bargain which would win the race. I dared not look behind, but my anxious ears kept me all too well informed.

"I reached the bridge and darted across it. Immediately I heard my pursuers, feet upon it. I had no time to dismount. I rode straight at the gate, ran upon it and shot over it head first in a magnificent header, landing in a heap of stones and brambles.

"In a glow of triumph, which at first prevented me feeling my wounds, I picked myself up—and beheld the furious beast in the act of trying to gore my unoffending bicycle.

"At first he had stopped in consternation, naturally amazed at seeing the monster divided in two parts. The portion which had shot over the gate he perceived to be very like a man, but the other part remained all the more mysterious. Presently he plunged his horns tentatively into the big wheel, whereupon my brave bicycle reared and struck him in the eye with a handle and set the little wheel crawling up his neck.

"At this the bull was astonished and alarmed—so much so that he backed off a little way. Then seeing that the bicycle lay motionless on the groud he charged upon it again, maltreating it shamefully and tossing it on top of his horns.

"This was too much for me. I ran up, reached over the gate and laid hold on my precious wheel. By strange good fortune I succeeded in detaching it from the brute's horns and hauling it over the gate. Then I pelted the animal with sticks and stones till he got disgusted and moved away.

"As soon as he was safely off the scene I opened the gate and limped sorrowfully down to this place, dragging my wheel by my side. Do you think we can do anything with it?"

"The first thing necessary," said I, "is to have an examination and make a diagnosis of its injuries."

This we forthwith proceeded to do and found the matter pretty serious. After spending an hour in tinkering at the machine we had to give up the job. Then we set forth on a visit to the village blacksmith, who, after being regaled with a full account of Caldwell's misadventure, addressed himself to his task with vast good will.

He was a skillful man, and before nightfall the wheel was in better traveling shape than its unlucky owner. But Caldwell was good stuff and of a merry heart, so that when on the following day he became our traveling companion, we found that his scars and his dugubrious countenance only heightened the effect of his good fellowship.—Chas. G. D. Roberts.

WHY WOMEN LIVE LONGER THAN MEN.—In the forty-ninth registration report of Massachusetts, 1890, the compiler presents the statistics of 203 persons who were reported as having died during the ten years, 1881-'90, at the age of 100 and over. Of this number 153, or 75.4 per cent., were females. The greater exposure of men to accidents, to weather agencies, to the constant strain of business life, to the anxiety of providing for the family all tend to shorten the life of men. The deaths by accident among men are more than threefold greater than among women, and the men commit suicide in about a threefold ratio as compared with women.—Medical Journal.

EDITOR—"Supposing I were to allow you to choose your own work; what would you select?"

Spaceryt—"I think I should like the relief work; taking each man's day off in succession."

HE was an applicant for a position as street car conductor. "What are your qualifications for the place?" asked the superintendent. "I used to work in a sardine packing establishment."

Trees of History and Legend.

It is wonderful to observe how trees are wrought into history, and how often they find a place of interest or honor like living persons or things. Almost every locality has a tree that has a habitation or name of its own, so that the place is known by its tree. The "Juniper Tree" of the Prophet, the "Parliament Tree" of England, the "Plane Tree" of Xerxes, the "Sacred Oak" of Dodona, the "Charter Oak" of our own country, and the "Cambridge Elm" under whose shade the Father of our Country found rest—these are a few in an almost innumerable group of woodland heroes. Who does not recall some tree beloved in youth, some favorite of father or mother, some land-mark of a well remembered scene that even demands a tribute of tears?

Aside from the beauty and grace of trees, they are the most useful of all natural growths. The palm tree among the Orientals, the bamboo among the Chinese, the banyan—where these abound they are absolutely indispensable to the people. Out of them, in their several homes are made houses, bridges, wagons, ropes, baskets, furniture, screen, knives, forks, spoons, mats, paper tents, boats, sails, and a countless list of articles.

In our own country there is a greater variety of trees than in any other land on earth. Even to name the different kinds would take time and research. But all our young people ought to know at least a few of these beautiful things. Perhaps the oak is our principal tree. They are divided into many families, and are found all over the northern hemisphere. There are both deciduous or leaf-dropping oaks, and evergreen oaks. The white oak is the commonest as well as the most useful. It is used for numerous purposes, and is very long-lived. The red oak, swamp oak, pin oak, and about a dozen other kinds are found in all our forests. A beautiful variety is the willow oak, which grows very tall and slender, and is perhaps the belle of the oak family.

The maple is the most generally admired of all our native trees. Found in every locality their graceful leaves, their slender branches, their gorgeous coloring in autumn have given them a lasting name. We have ten or twelve varieties, but of these only four are at all widespread in their growth. All maples have hand-shaped leaves, some with more divisions or fingers than the others. The swamp, or soft maple, is the commonest of the maples. The "hard" or "rock," or sugar maple, is a treasure-tree, for from it are obtained the American delicacies—maple sugar and maple syrup. The ash-leafed maple is almost always called box elder in the Middle States.

The magnolia is one of the grandest trees in the world. The leaves are broad and beautiful, but the flowers are more so. There can be no more lovely object than the great laurel magnolia with its large snow-white waxen blossoms, fragrant and graceful. The magnolia is a southern tree, but the "sweet bay" grows all along our eastern coast. Some varieties of magnolia have purple flowers. The tulip tree is classed with magnolia, but does not really belong there. It is one of the few American trees that are found in no other country. It is a tree much used for building purposes, and called by architects the "yellow poplar." It is a very long-lived plant.

The sycamore is a favorite tree among the Western and Southern States. It grows to an immense height, and marks the course of streams. The linden is a lovely tree. It blooms in the summer, and its branches are haunted by great swarm of bees, who hum and buzz all day long amid the sweet flowers, and go home laden with stores of honey at dusk. The seeds of this tree are in pods like peas, and these have a delightful, spicy flavor. The chestnut is also a flowering tree, and celebrated for its nuts in autumn. Some localities abound in these favorites, and the nuts are sold all over the country. It is a tree well known in history. It grows broad and strong, one of them being celebrated for a trunk nearly two hundred feet in circumference, and large enough when hollowed out to contain a small house.

The basswood, or lime tree, is a species of linden. Then comes the ash tree, with wood very strong and elastic and much admired as a furniture lumber. It is a favorite wood for oars, as it is tough and hard to break in handling. The hickory is a famous forest tree, with its beautiful leaves, its shaggy bark, and delightful nuts. Boys and girls all love the hickory for it whistles in the spring and its nuts in the fall. The plane tree is one that the ancients loved. They planted it around their schools, and Plato taught beneath its shade. So it is well fitted for scholars to plant on Arbor Day.

The Kentucky coffee tree, the catalpa, with its fragrant white blossoms, the walnut, white and black, with nuts that are welcome to all, the numerous kinds of willows, the birch, with its score of varietes,—all abound in the different States and Territories. The pride of our Eastern forest, the elm, so ornamental in the streets of many cities; the American larch, hackmatack, or tamarack—growing so tall and with such graceful forms; the wild cherry, the plum, the haw, the crab-apple—to give all our native trees would be impossible in such small space. And then comes the evergreens, a class by themselves, noble and stately beyond all belief—the arbor vitæ, the cedars, red and white, the junipers, the pines, of numerous varieties, the white spruce, the Norway spruce—most beautiful of evergreens, the cypress, and the hemlock. A careful study of American trees would well repay the scholar, and a collection of the leaves of all kinds would be a most delightful and interesting curiosity. MRS. F. A. MATTHEWS.

A MASSACHUSETTS minister pathetically said to a newspaper man the other day, "Why don't some of you reporters get up an article on 'Why women stand at the door (especially the screen door in fly time) for the last words after they have taken five minutes to half an hour indoors to say good-by?" The poor man has suffered, as his wife admitted at the time, and spends half his leisure in summer fighting flies.

USED TO IT.—"Did Mr. Slowpay seem annoyed at your calling with his bill?" asked Mr. Gaskett of his new collector.

"No, sir," replied the young man; "on the contrary, he asked me to call again."—Boston Globe.

A Race for Land.

No spot in America presents a more curiously picturesque scene than that to be witnessed now at the border line of the Cherokee strip. The promised opening up of new lands to settlement has brought the inevitable crowd, and the border is lined with men, women and children, waiting for the fateful hour when a dash into the untilled territory will decide who is to have fine farming lands and wealth and who is to have the poor lands and poverty. To make sure that no "sooners" have slipped across the line and hid in the grass tufts the military are setting fire to the prairie. Along the Walnut and Arkansas Rivers 1500 families are camping out or living in improvised houses of sod or canvas, and in order to prepare their teams for the mad rush the boomers are giving their horses racing exercise. A singular feature of it all is the active participation of women in the work of preparation. A group of negroes who propose to organize a town exclusively peopled by their own race are waiting with the rest. A further complication of the strange panorama is added by the organization of a group of 100 cowboys, who expect to use their fleet ponies and their knowledge of the land before them in getting the best of the town sites and making themselves rich for life.—Chicago Record.

A Legend About Lacemaking.

Lacemaking is by no means so old an industry as most persons suppose. There is no proof that it existed previously to the fifteenth century, and the oldest known painting in which it appears is a portrait of a lady in the academy at Venice, painted by Caspaccio, who died about 1523. The legend concerning the origin of the art is as follows: A young fisherman of the Adriatic was betrothed to a young and beautiful girl of one of the isles of the lagoon. Industrious as she was beautiful, the girl made a new net for her lover, who took it with him on board his boat. The first time he cast it into the sea he dragged therefrom an exquisite petrified wrack grass which he hastened to present to his fiancee. But war breaking out the fisherman was pressed into the service of the Venetian navy. The poor girl wept at the departure of her lover and contemplated his last gift to her. But while absorbed in following the intricate tracery of the wrack grass she began to twist and plait the threads weighted with small beads which hung around her net. Little by little she wrought an imitation of the petrification, and thus was created the bobbin lace.—Washington Star.

Curious Marriage Presents.

One New Jersey clergyman received for a marriege fee in a monogramed envelope a bridge toll ticket of the value of 2 cents. Another got something neatly wrapped in paper. He took it to a grocer, told him that it was a wedding fee, that he had not opened it and did not know what it was, but would give it to him, "sight unseen," for a watermelon. The grocer agreed, the dominie seized his melon, and the grocer found in the paper a silver 3 cent piece. One groom, as he passed out with his bride, threw into a workbasket an old pair of gloves, saying to the minister's wife that she might have them. The minister's wife looked at them with scorn and contempt. A few days later, however, wishing to do some gardening, she thought the despised old gloves might be useful after all. She attempted to put them on and found a difficulty. In every one of the 10 fingers there was a $5 bill.—Trenton True American.

Art Instruction.

An artist had sold a picture for an exorbitant price and the purchaser sued to recover. The attorney for the purchaser was making the artist uncomfortable by his questions.

"Now, sir," he said in that pleasant, ingratiating manner of lawyers with a witness, "do you think anybody could see beauty in that picture?"

"Some persons certainly could," replied the artist.

"You think the initiated in technical matters might have no difficulty in understanding your work?"

"I am sure they would not."

"Do you think you could make me see any beauty in that picture?" this most superciliously.

"Probably not now, sir"—and the artist was most humble—"but once I could have done so easily."

"Now, sir, how is that? I don't understand you. Explain, if you please."

"That's quite easy, sir. I could have done it simply by employing you as my counsel in this case."

COURTESY AMONG THE SWEDES.—The Swedes are a quiet, taciturn people. There is no jostling even among the lowest classes. When a train leaves a platform or a steamboat a pier, the lookers on lift their hats to the departing passengers and bow to them, a compliment which is returned by the passengers. You are expected to lift your hat to the shabbiest person you meet in the street, and to enter a shop, office or bank with the hat on is considered a bad breach of good manners. In retiring from a restaurant you are expected to bow to the occupants. Bowing and hat lifting is so common that the people seem to move around more slowly than elsewhere, in order to observe the courtesy.

ALL RIGHT.—Two men became engaged in a fight in the street. Instantly their hats went off and rolled in the dust. One of the men was entirely bald and seized the other by the hair and began to drag him about.

"Stop him!" cried a bystander.

"Why should you stop him?" asked another. "He's only practicing the golden rule."

"The golden rule? What do you mean?"

"Why, he's doing to the other man what he wishes to goodness the other man might be able to do to him!"—Youth's Companion.

Slavery in Siam.

Slavery in Siam has been abolished in name, but it can never be abolished in fact, for the slaves have no means of supporting themselves outside their masters' houses. Every member of the Siamese upper classes can fetter his servants or throw them into prison without any kind of trial or permission being necessary. One morning I went to call upon one of the ablest and most enlightened of the ministers, a man who has been to Europe, and who once actually got into serious trouble for trying to inaugurate a sort of woman's rights movement in Siam. I made my way by mistake into a part of his grounds where visitors were not expected, and I found a slave fastened down to the ground in an ingenious kind of pillory in which he could not move hand or foot, while another slave tortured him with severe strokes of a bamboo rod at the word of a member of the family in order to force him to confess to some misdeed.—Contemporary Review.

Chunks of Hard Thought.

Keep your eye on the young man who would rather wear a $50 suit of clothes with $10 in his pocket than to wear a $10 suit of clothes with $50 in his pocket.

Men of motley minds often have motley morals.

The worst people in the world are the richest and the poorest.

How Did the Dollar Mark Originate?

Below I give five theories of the origin of the dollar mark ($), they being selected from about 20 seemingly plausible solutions:

That it is a combination of the "U. S.;" the initials of United States.

That it is a modification of the figure 8, the dollar being formerly called a "piece of eight."

That it is derived from a representation of the Pillars of Hercules; consisting of two needlelike towers or pillars connected with a scroll. The old Spanish coins marked with the pillar device were frequently referred to as "pillar dollars."

That it is a combination of "H. S.," the ancient Roman mark of money unit.

That it is a combination of P. and S. from peso duro, signifying "hard dollar." In Spanish accounts peso is contracted by writing the S. over the P. and placing it over the sum.

According to one writer the symbol of the dollar is a monogram of the letters "V," "S" and "J," the dollar being originally a "thaler" coined in the valley of Sant Joachim, Bohemia, and known as "Joachim thaler," and the monogram the initials of the words, "Valley Sant Joachim."—St. Louis Republic.

A Witty Answer.

Those whose mission in life is to entertain the public, are always pestered by friends and acquaintances for free seats at their entertainments. There probably never was a singer, or an actor, or a pianist who was not bored nearly to death by these people, many of whom had not the slightest claim to ask the courtesy they demanded.

A pianist who was pre-eminently successful in his day, and that day was not so far back either, was Rubinstein, who traveled nearly the whole world, over, delighting people with his genius. He, like all others, was very much annoyed by requests for complimentary tickets, but most of the time he maintained his composure even though justly irritated. It is told of him that just before one of his recitals in London, he was accosted by an old lady in the entrance hall, and thus addressed:

"Oh, Mr. Rubinstein, I am so glad to see you! I have tried in vain to purchase a ticket. Have you a seat you could let me have?"

"Madam," said the great pianist, "there is but one seat at my disposal, and that you are welcome to, if you think fit to take it."

"Oh, yes; and a thousand thanks! Where is it?" was the excited reply.

"At the piano," smilingly replied Rubinstein.

TOLD WITH E'S.—The following paragraph now going the rounds contains 57 words, 112 e's and no other vowel: "We feel extreme feebleness when we seek perfect excellence here. We well remember men everywhere err. Even when Eden's evergreen trees sheltered Eve the serpent crept there. Yet, when tempted, when cheerlessness depresses, when helplessness fetters, when we seem deserted, then we remember Bethlehem. We beseech the Redeemer's help. We ever need the rest the blessed expect."

SUMMARY TREATMENT.—Old Uncle Gabe's young masters love to mystify him with long words, which he will never own that he does not understand.

One day one of them said to him: "Uncle Gabe, if you and your wife were walking down the street and a man should come up and recognize you, what would you do?"

"I'd knock him down," promptly returned Uncle Gable.—Harper's Bazar.

THE other day quite a number of visitors, cousins and aunts, were assembled at the house of Mrs. X to inspect her 6-weeks-old baby. "Dear little creature!" said one; "he's got his father's eyes, hasn't he?" "Yes," said another, "and his mother's mouth undoubtedly." Whereupon little Bobby (who has had enough of it) chimed in: "He hasn't got anybody's hair, has he, aunty?"

Rhymes of Animals.

A correspondent writes: I strung the following rhymes to tickle the ears of my little boys, four and six years old. They cause their mamma to read it over and over again; and then have her bring the big illustrated dictionary to point out the funny animals with such strange names, and tell what she knows about them. This fancy for rhyme and rythm is, I suppose, a characteristic of nearly all children, and perhaps the publication of this will amuse a wider circle than my little household. This aim has been, after euphony, to have the most incongruous animals in juxtaposition:

The Direction of One's Bed.

"The first thing I do when I get to a hotel is to see how my bed stands in regard to the points of the compass," said Frederick Wilbur. "It is usual in fixing up a room to put the bed where most convenient, without regard to the direction in which the head points, and this is really the principal reason why travelers sleep soundly in one town and lie awake grumbling all night in the next. To obviate this, I take my bearings with a little pocket compass, and if my bed is not arranged with the head facing either north or south I swing it around right away and make it face north if possible, accepting the south as a compromise.

"Some people think it all nonsense to talk about a current of magnetism passing steadily from pole to pole, but any telephone operator or fixer will show you in a few minutes that this is actually the case. If you sleep with your head to the east or the west, you don't get the benefit of this electric current, while if you lie in proper position it passes through the body during the night and has a soothing, recuperative effect. Try the experiment and you will laugh at those who take opiates with a view to wooing refreshing sleep."—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

They Only Knew Agassiz.

In 1858 a party consisting of Lowell, Emerson, Agassiz, Judge Hoar, W. J. Stillman and several others spent a few weeks of the summer in the Adirondacks.

The journey of the company gave rise to an incident which has often been incorrectly told, and which, as a curious comment upon human fame, deserves to be told again. The coming of the party was of course made known along the track it would follow, and at Keeseville, where the common roads then ended, the town was agog to see the "philosophers," as they were at once collectively called. But neither Emerson nor Lowell was known, Agassiz being the only celebrity to that world, owing to his having recently refused the offer by the emporer of France of the keepership of the Jardin des Plantes at Paris and a senatorship with a large salary, he preferring to devote himself to science and America.

The selectmen of the town waited on the visitors early in the morning after their arrival to pay their respects, they said, but really to see a man who had no regard for money and distinction. They were received formally, the spokesman bringing a copy of a periodical which contained a portrait of Agassiz, which he produced and carefully compared with the lineaments of the professor until he had satisfied himself of the authenticity of the individual, when he addressed his followers with, "Yes, it's him!" And they then proceeded to shake hands with him, the rest of the party being ignored.—W. J. Stillman in Century.

COLD AIR IN PLACE OF ICE.—I predict that ten years from now the familiar ice wagon will be a novelty upon the streets of a city, so general will have been the adoption of artificial refrigeration. For a long time brewers, pork packers and storage men have been independent of the ice crop, and the introduction of the cold air pipe lines down town has supplanted the use of ice in hotels, restaurants and barrooms except wherein it is desired to make a display of the crystal commodity. In time the distribution of cold air will be as general in cities as is gas or water, and the system will be perfected whereby the refrigerating gas necessary for attachment to a family refrigerator will be delivered in a tank just like carbonated water is to the soda fountains, once a month or as required.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

DR. T. THATCHER GRAVES, the convicted poisoner of Mrs. Josephine Barnaby, committed suicide in his cell in the county jail at Denver, Colorado, Sunday night, week, presumably by taking poison. He was found stiff and cold in death at 9 a. m., Sunday week. That the prisoner had long contemplated taking his own life is evident from the date of the following letter, addressed to the coroner: "Please don't hold any autopsy on my remains. The cause of death may be rendered as follows: Died from persecution. Worn out. Exhausted." In another letter to a friend he most solemnly declares his entire innocence.

THE financial outlook is brightening; the back of the panic has been broken and reaction is strongly setting in. Confidence and buoyancy are returning, and the channels of trade and industry are feeling and responding to a better and more secure condition in finances. Daily suspended banks are reopening all over the Union; the premium on currency has disappeared, and mills and manufactories, North, South, East and West, are resuming, thereby recalling to their wonted tasks operatives, and relieving the glut in the labor market. Through the large importations of gold from Europe and the increase of bank notes sufficient money is on hand to move the crops and the farmers' condition is much improved.

Yet in the face of all this, and any candid and unprejudiced mind will admit that the statement is not exaggerated, some very narrow-minded and offensively stalwart Republican organs are doing all they possibly can to prolong the distress, cause new failures and keep unemployed many laborers by publishing depressing and mendacious editorials tending to destroy confidence and prevent the recovery of the country.

They are willing to go, and have gone, beyond the truth and the facts in order to gain a paltry partisan advantage through the distress and misery of the nation. They ascribe the present, or rather past, panic to the election of Mr. Cleveland, the return of the Democratic party to power, but principally to the fear of future tariff changes in accordance with Democratic principles.

The confidence and faith reposed in Mr. Cleveland by both capital and labor and the anxious solicitude expressed by the nation in regard to his health is a complete refutation to the charge that his election was a disturbing element. His wise, patriotic and statesmanlike policy was a potent factor in ameliorating the condition and preventing a more serious development of the panic, and was in strong contrast to the weak and vacillating course of his Republican predecessor.

The charge that the people are fearful of future tariff changes by the Democratic Congress is equivalent to saying the people are fools and do not know what they want; that after a campaign of unprecedented discussion and sober thinking the overwhelming majority given in favor of tariff reform does not represent the sentiment of the nation. At the same time it is an arraignment of republican principles of government and a condemnation of the will of the people as expressed through the ballot-box.

In their mad zeal and blinded partisanship these organs will not see what statesmen, financiers, bankers and the more respectable papers of all parties know to be the real cause, the Sherman silver purchasing clause. Bradstreets' says it is strange, in view of the known facts, that so many writers should have felt at liberty to declare that the recent stringency was due to anticipated changes in the tariff. Bradstreets' is an eminently respectable authority on finances, but probably unacquainted with the "liberty" through which a Republican party organ, one that is "uncompromisingly Republican," is content to wade in order to accomplish its end.

THE Democratic State Convention is in session to-day. It is probable Judge Samuel Gustine Thompson will be nominated for Judge of the Supreme Court. Among those mentioned for the State Treasury nomination are J. Henry Cochran, of Williamsport; ex-Senator Hannibal K. Sloan, of Indiana county; C. W. Raymond, of Middletown; John Kulms, of Greensburg; Frank C. Osborn, of Pittsburg; Captain Williams, of Oil City, and John L. McKinney, of Titusville.

THE Lancaster Intelligencer last week appeared in new type and with two pages added to its size. It is printed with a new Cox Duplex press and has a very neat, clean appearance. The Intelligencer for years has been doing noble battle for Democracy in the very stronghold of Republicanism, and well deserves its remarkable success. We extend our congratulations.

THE new White House baby will be known hereafter as "Esther." This old-fashioned name has been selected for the child by the President and Mrs. Cleveland. It is stated that the selection of this name has no significance other than the partiality of the parents for scriptural denominitives and that it means "a star" and "good fortune."

AUDITOR GENERAL GREGG has expressed his intention of proceeding against all county officials who fail to make prompt returns monthly, as they are required to do.

REPUBLICAN editors of the State are laboriously engaged in trying to explain what the platform adopted by the recent Republican State Convention means.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15, 1893.

Editor of Compiler: It seems difficult for the Republicans to understand that the Democrats in Congress intend to redeem the promises made in the Chicago platform. They actually seemed to think that it was impossible to cajole the Democrats into letting the McKinley tariff law, which was denounced from every Democratic stump and in the columns of every Democratic newspaper in the land during the last campaign, remain on the statute books, for awhile anyway. And their mistake in the tariff business, which is now very plain to them, taught them nothing. They are now engaged in the useless business of trying to frighten the Democrats out of the notion of repealing the Federal election laws, laws which made the notorious John I. Davenport a possibility and which in the hands of an unscrupulous administration have in the past (and may in the future, if allowed to stand) surrounded the voting places of American citizens with bayonets in the hands of soldiers.

The number of Democrats who can be frightened by Republican twaddle is small and, as Representative McMillin said early in the session, "let those Democrats who feel timid about carrying out the Chicago platform go to the rear; there will be enough left in front to do the fighting." The Tucker bill for the repeal of all laws providing for Federal supervision of elections has been reported to the House and will be given the right of way until passed. How long it will take to pass it depends largely upon circumstances. The Democrats are perfectly willing that it shall be fully debated, and no attempt will be made to force a vote until legitimate debate has been exhausted, but no filibustering will be allowed.

Everything indicates that the debate on the Voorhees repeal bill is drawing near its end in the Senate and that the long contest of personal endurance by means of a continuous session of the Senate with a quorum always present or within call will soon begin. Another attempt, in fact, several of them, were made this week to get President Cleveland's consent to some sort of a compromise that would secure an immediate vote and avoid the hard feelings between Senators which always follow prolonged sessions, but Mr. Cleveland was inflexible. A number of the Democratic Senators who will vote for the Voorhees bill are personally willing to agree to a compromise that would in some shape recognize silver, but having promised Mr. Cleveland that they would vote for unconditional repeal they do not feel at liberty to do so without his consent.

The House committee on Foreign Affairs will report a bill providing a substitute for the much-discussed Geary anti-Chinese law. The bill introduced by Representative Everett, of Massachusetts, is now being considered by the committee and will probably be favorably reported, with slight modifications suggested by Representative Geary, of California. So many sensational statements have recently been made concerning the intentions of the administration that Attorney General Olney gave out an official statement this week that the Geary law would not be enforced until Congress acts, and that the Government does not acquiesce in the interpretation given the law by Judge Ross in his recent decision, as to the right of private citizens to begin proceedings against the Chinese and call upon the government to provide for their deportation.

No one can call at the White House without becoming aware of the satisfaction that is felt from the President down to the humblest employe over the good fortune that has followed Mrs. Cleveland and her baby girl. Congratulations are still pouring in by mail from all sections of the country and from all classes of people.

Jerry Simpson's refusal to engage in a joint debate with Congressman Marshall ("Cyclone Jim"), of Virginia, when they were both speaking at the same Virginia town the other day, has been the cause of Jerry's getting a lot of chaffing from his colleagues in the House. Jerry comes from a cyclone country and knows the danger to be expected from them, and wisely declines to knowingly put himself in the path of one.

The tariff hearings before the House Ways and Means committee have at times been quite interesting this week, and several manufacturers' agents who found themselves confounded when they presented the stock protection arguments went away thoroughly convinced that the Democrats on that committee are much better posted on the practical workings of the present tariff than the newspapers generally have given them credit for being. Tom Reed continues to play the role of clown. DEM.

THE corner stone of the new church of the United Brethren at Carlisle was laid Sunday.

AN OVERLAND ROUTE.—We were in conversation to-day with Mr. C. D. Sandoe, of Omaha, Neb., who left this state twenty years ago, and bought land about 250 miles northwest of Omaha. On July 9th, he left his city accompanied by his boy thirteen years of age, in a two-horse gipsy wagon and arrived at the house of his father near McKnightstown, Aug. 31st, being 54 days on the way. He came through Des Moines, Davenport, Iowa; Rock Island, crossing the Mississippi river thence to Joliet, and leaving his team with a farmer, run up to Chicago and spent one day at the World's Fair. From there by Fort Wayne, Ind., crossing the Ohio at Wellsburg, and encountered the big storm at Bedford, Pa. He reports the country along the way in good condition with the exception of a severe drought in Indiana. Five weeks ago farmers were, in that section cutting corn to save the fodder. They arrived here in excellent spirits only a little tired. Mr. Sandoe is a cousin to Geo. Sandoe, who fell on the Baltimore pike just before our battle in the Pigeon Hills. W.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—A runaway which might have been serious in its consequences, occurred at Round-Top Sunday afternoon. John LeFevre, of Littlestown, was driving a horse down the north slope of the hill when something caused him to run. He kicked in the dash and broke the carriage considerably. Miss Naomi Weaver and Miss Romaine Crouse were the other occupants. At John Rosensteel's Samuel Beam made an effort to stop the horse, but was thrown down and his side, shoulder and knee were bruised. The horse continued to the ice house, where Frank Rosensteel caused him to run into a fence corner. By the sudden stop Miss Crouse was thrown out, badly frightened, but uninjured.—Star.

Sudden Death.—Our community was startled by the news of the death of Mrs. Sarah V. Fonlk, wife of Mr. Levi U. Fonlk, of blood poisoning, caused from scratching her hand on the metal top of a fruit jar, which she was closing in jaring fruit, some two or three weeks ago. Her remains were interred at Grace Lutheran church, Two Taverns, last Sunday. Rev. J. C. Wire conducted the services and preached a most impressive sermon to the large audience present. Mrs. Foulk was a most exemplary person, a consistent member of the Lutheran church, a most generous and kind hearted friend and neighbor. Her loss will be felt by many, especially her husband, who is left alone Mrs Foulk was 45 years 3 months and 29 days.

About the same time and near by Mrs. Foltz Clay, who leaves seven small children (the two youngest only a few days old) to mourn her loss Mr. Todt has the sympathy of the community in this his hour of trial and affliction.

Last evening about 8 o'clock the barn of Mr. John Miller, one mile south o' this place, was discovered to be on fire. Neighbors soon arrived, but too late to be of any assistance. The barn, an old time log concern, quickly burned to the ground with 25 tons of timothy hay. The tenant, Mr. Robert Ecker, succeeded in getting his horses, cows and buggy out, but loses all his harness and gears, cutting box, and new Western wagon had one hind wheel burned off before it was gotten out. Mr. Ecker is not insured. The barn we understand is insured in the Mummasburg Co. The cause is supposed incendiarism. W.

PLEASANT SURPRISE.—Notwithstanding the inclement evening, Emory H. Plank, of Cumberland township, was very agreeably surprised on last Thursday evening by his neighbors and friends coming in to celebrate his 22d birthday. Immediately after arriving his new residence was thrown open and the brilliantly lighted rooms were soon a scene of conversation, music and dancing. Later the guests were all invited to the dining room and did ample justice to a table loaded with cakes and the delicacies of the season. The party dispersed at a late hour being well pleased and wishing Mr. Plank and his young wife a long life of pleasure and usefulness. A GUEST.

Mad Rush for Land.

ORLANDO, Okla., Sept. 17.—In a long, irregular line, extending for nearly 500 miles along the border of that promised land, the Cherokee strip, 150,000 people made their wild, weird rush for homesteads at noon to-day. It was a scene of expectancy, excitement and furious elbow-to-elbow competition, the like of which all previous history had failed to furnish.

At last a puff of smoke was seen out on plains to the north, and soon a dull report of a cannon was heard. A dozen carbines along the line were fired in response to the signal, the lines was broken, and, with a mighty shout, the great race was on. Darting out at break-neck speed, the racers soon dotted the plains in every direction. Following them came trained bicyclists and vehicles driven with a madness that disregarded every obstruction. The railway trains in waiting were loaded with a rush such as characterized every movement along the line. The first of twelve cars pulled across the line at noon, crowded as it never was before. Following this train, with an interval of only two or three minutes, went another, and another, until the last, consisting of flat and coal cars, all crowded, had pulled across the line followed by at least 3,000 disappointed, panting men, who were determined "to win a claim or bust."

The quarter sections about the town had all been taken, but in every direction lines were being run and additional towns laid out to be called North Perry, South Perry, East Perry and West Perry. By two o'clock fully 50 000 men and women of all nationalities and colors were on the site of what all hope will be a great city, without food and without water. Before the sun had reached the halfway point between the meridian and the horizon a dozen cities had been born, and before it had set business had started up, lots had changed hands and politicians were seeking office in every one of them.

DEVASTATED BY FLOOD.—Madrid, Sept. 15.—The town of Villa-Canas, in the Province of Toledo, has been devastated by flood, and a large number of lives have been lost. Heavy rains have fallen in the province, and the town, which is situated on rather low ground, was inundated. The people had no thought of danger, though the many small streams in the vicinity of the town were rapidly swelling and threatening to overflow their banks.

The bodies have been found of several women who had apparently made heroic efforts to save themselves and their children. In one place a handsome young woman was found with an infant clasped to her breast with one hand, while with the other hand she held the body of a little boy. All were dead and there was not a mark upon them. It is positively known that forty persons were drowned, and it is believed that the bodies of many others are buried under the ruins of their homes. It is thought that the government will have to extend aid to the town. The people are so stricken with the disaster that they display no concern over the loss of their relatives or property and assistance will have to be given them until they recover from the blow.

J. GRANT CRAMER, a nephew of the late General Grant, has been appointed instructor of languages at the Lehigh university, South Bethlehem, Pa.

ONE word describes it—"perfection." We refer to DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, cures obstinate sores, burns, skin diseases and is a well known cure for piles. Sold by J. M. Huber.

WE could not improve the quality if paid the price. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is the best Salve that experience can buy. Sold by J. M. Huber.

THERE are twenty-two known broods of 17-year locusts this year, and they turn up in different parts of the country.

GUARANTEED CURE.—We authorize our advertised druggist to sell Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, upon this condition. If you are afflicted with a Cough, Cold or any Lung, Throat or Chest trouble, and will use the remedy as directed, giving it a fair trial, and experience no benefit, you may return the bottle and have your money refunded. We could not make this offer did we not know that Dr. King's New Discovery could be relied on. It never disappoints. Trial bottles free at John M. Huber's Drug Store. Large size 50c. and $1 00 (2)

A Gentleman

Who formerly resided in Connecticut, but who now resides in Honolulu, writes: "For 25 years past, my wife and I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor, and we attribute to it the dark hair which she and I now have, while hundreds of our acquaintances, ten or a dozen years younger than we, are either gray-headed, white, or bald. When asked how our hair has retained its color and fullness, we reply, 'By the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor—nothing else.'" "In 1868, my influence was nearly bald, and the hair kept falling out every day. I induced her to use Ayer's Hair Vigor, and very soon, not only checked any further loss of hair, but produced an entirely new growth, which has remained luxuriant and glossy to this day. I can recommend this preparation to all in need of a genuine hair-restorer. It is all that it is claimed to be."—Antonio Azarra, Bastrop, Texa.

Adjourned Court.

At an adjourned Court held yesterday, all the Judges present, the following current business was disposed of:

Robert D. Armor, Levi Mumper, Henry J. Brinkerhoff, Sr., Dr. C. E. Eckenrode, John Homan, Capt. Wm. J. Martin and Prof. John A. Himes were appointed viewers to assess damages and benefits arising from the widening and opening of West street between Chambersburg (now Main) street and West Middle street, in this place, to the width of fifty feet.

The accounts as advertised were confirmed.

V. A. Lawrence, Guardian, was allowed to invest his wards' fund at 5 per cent.

Wm. G. Leas was appointed Trustee of the fund for the use of Sarah Baker; bond in $1400.

Real estate bonds of Howard Funt, Administrator of Geo. Taylor, deceased; and of Atley Peters and Dill Bream, Adm. of Jacob W. Peters, deceased, filed and approved.

The cases of the Com. vs. Benjamin Read, assault and battery, and Com. vs. Geo. Hess, charged with surety of the peace and carrying concealed weapons, were settled.

Inquisition on the real estate of John Snyder, deceased, was filed and approved, and sale awarded to John Ruff; bond required in $2,000.

Electric Light.

Last night a test was made of the machinery and ten arc lights of the electric light plant. The arcs were distributed over the nothern section of the town, with three around the square. For about an hour the beautiful blue light was shining and the decided improvement over gas was gratifying. The glass globes have not yet arrived and on that account the light was not reflected to the ground. The machinery worked smoothly with a few exceptions, and by October 1 the Company expect to have all the lights in place and enter on their contract with the borough.

Dr. Henry Stewart has been appointed chief electrician of the plant.

Change of Polls.

Acting under the provisions of a late act of Assembly, and the advice of their Counsel, the County Commissioners have changed the voting places of such townships as have heretofore been voting in adjoining boroughs. There are now but two townships so situated. Cumberland which has been voting in this borough, has been changed to the second floor of J. Jere Plank's creamery, on the Emmitsburg road, just beyond the borough limits. Menallen will be removed from the school-house in Bendersville to within its own limits, the place is not yet determined. The directors of Latimore have refused the use of the school-house, and the Commissioners will provide another place.

ISRAEL GARRETSON, Esq., has been chosen by the managers of the Agricultural Societies of Bethlehem and Nazareth, Northampton co., to award the premiums on horses, cattle, sheep and swine, under the single judge system. This is the third successive year that Mr. Garretson has been appointed to this position.

RECENTLY a valuable colt belonging to Mr. Ed. Schriver, of Cumberland township, was killed by dogs. Some sheep of Daniel Swartzbaugh's were killed the same night, being badly mangled and torn.

W. M. Eastern Extension.

Tuesday the eastern extension of the Baltimore and Harrisburg Division of the W. M. Railroad, from York to Porter's Siding, was thrown open for travel. The road was inspected by the officials and directors of the Western Maryland and the Eastern Extension from an observation car attached to a special train.

The train service upon the new line will consist of four passenger trains and one freight train in each direction, running between York and Hanover, with close connections at Porter's, through cars to and from Baltimore. The track is laid with steel and heavily ballasted with stone. There are four iron bridges of short spans, a pile bridge across the Spring Grove dam, with trestle approaches to the overhead crossing at the Frederick Division Pennsylvania Railroad, near Spring Grove.

The York extension is fifteen miles in length from Porter's to York. The eight and one-half miles from Porter's are common to this line, and the proposed Harrisburg extension, which will branch off at Thomasville and strike the Philadelphia and Reading Road at Bowmansdale. A further extension is in progress of fourteen miles, from York to Chickies, where the Susquehanna river is but 2,000 feet wide. Here a connection will be made with the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad.

The following are the officers and directors of the road: Capt. W. H. Lanius, President; D. K. Trimmer, Secretary; W. Latimer Small, A. B. Farquhar, John C. Schmidt, Grier Hersh, W. H. Lanius and D. K. Trimmer, directors, all of York; J. M. Hood, Chief Engineer and General Manager; Geo. H. Baer, Treasurer; B. H. Griswold, General Freight and Passenger Agent; Jos. Lieb, Div. F. & P. A.; H. D. Scott, Supt.; C. O. Vandevanter, Principal Asst. Engineer. C. M. Johnson, Division Engineer.

The B. & H. Railway (Eastern Extension) is leased to the Western Maryland Company at 5 per cent. upon its cost, which has been very moderate. The stock of the company belongs to the Potomac Valley Railroad Company, which in turn is owned by the Western Maryland.

W. F. Rowe has been made ticket agent and operator at the West York station, Carl E. Freeman taking Mr. Rowe's place at Hampstead, Md. The passenger train is in charge of Chas. Emig, Rufus Sheads succeeding him as conductor on the accomodation train reaching here at 1.23, p. m. E. Z. Miller is baggage master and Harry Socks will take his place as brakeman.

Fires by Lightning.

During the heavy electrical storm on Friday, one of the most severe in this section in years, lightning struck the livery stable of Ziegler & Holtzworth, on Washington street, going from one gable along the comb of the roof to the other. There was no straw in the loft at the time, and the downpour of rain and water thrown from a private hose put out the flames before the fire apparatus arrived. The damage was but slight.

The same day the barn on the Sowers farm near York Springs was struck and burned down. Mr. A. W. Feeser, the mail carrier from here to York Springs and who is the tenant, was on his route at the time and his family was away. His two cattle, new buggy, and farming implements were consumed. There was no insurance on either barn or contents.

One of the trolley cars was at the Wheatfield during the storm, with a load of colored ministers who made a visit to the field, and lightning entering one of the moters from the trolley wire destroyed it, causing several hours delay.

Veteran Reunions.

About 120 members and friends of the 13th N. J. infantry from Jersy City and surrounding towns arrived yesterday to hold their annual reunion. In the evening a pleasant camp-fire was held in the court-house, Capt. Mathews, of Orange, N. J., was chairman, and the programme was made up of songs, reminiscences, etc. To-day they are going over the battlefield and leave this evening for Antietam and Washington.

Five representatives of the Purnell Legion, Md. Cavalry, held a reunion at the Washington House on Sunday afternoon, afterwards taking in the field.

21st PA. CAVALRY.—The fourth annual reunion of the veterans of the Twenty-first Pennsylvania cavalry will be held at Chambersburg on the 4th of October, with headquarters at the National Hotel. The next day there will be an excursion here, when the regimental monument will be dedicated.

EAGLE SHOT.—A golden eagle was shot by Mr. Robert H. Ecker, near Bonneauville, on Wednesday last.

KNEE FRACTURED.—On Sunday while Andrew Criswell, of near Granite Station, was unhitching a horse it began to moved off and in his efforts to stop it Mr. Criswell was thrown down and his right knee struck on a sharp stone, resulting in a compound fracture of the knee-cap. Drs. Dixon and Scott are the attending physicians and report that the injury is a very serious one.

COUNTY FAIRS.—The Cumberland County Fair will be held at Carlisle from Sept. 26 to 29; York County Agricultural Society at York, Oct. 2 to 6; Maryland State Fair in combination with the great Hagerstown Fair, Oct. 10 to 13, and the Frederick Fair at Frederick, Md., Oct. 10 to 13.

MR. E. A. SEABROOK, of Cumberland twp., lost a fine three year old mare by drowning one night last week. The mare was alarmed by dogs while in the field and ran up over a low straw stack and landed on the platform of a well. She fell through and was drowned.

HANOVER FAIR.—The weather this year was decidedly against the Hanover Fair, the rain preventing large attendance and making the track heavy.

The attendance on Tuesday was about 2,000; on Wednesday, 4,000; on Thursday, 7,000, and on Friday 8,000. As an exhibition, the Fair was the usual success. The live stock exhibit was a fine one, although not as large in the cattle classes as usual. There were more and finer hogs and sheep on exhibition than ever before. The poultry display was up to the average, but greatly surpassed last year's showing. The main building was well filled with a well arranged display. The pickles, canned goods, jellies and preserves astonished strangers by their numbers and beauty. The fruit exhibit was wonderful, considering the season, the grapes being especially worth seeing. The running races were spirited contests, but owing to the condition of the track the races generally were below the average.

SCHOOL DEDICATED.—Another addition to the educational advantages of Hanover was marked by the dedication Sunday afternoon of the handsome new school building of St. Joseph's R. C. parish. The ceremonies were attended by all the pomp of the Church on such occasions, and were witnessed by hundreds of people—Catholic and Protestant—not only of Hanover but from all adjacent points, Gettysburg, McSherrystown, New Oxford, Littlestown, etc.

At the conclusion of vespers, St. Joseph's Beneficial Society of Hanover, St. Ignatius, of New Oxford and the Immaculate Conception of Littlestown with their various banners flying filed about the building and stood with bared heads while the pastor, Rev. Father Foin, assisted by Rev. Father O'Leary, of Conowago Chapel, Rev. Father Crotty, of Littlestown and Rev. Father Hemler, of New Oxford, all dressed in priestly robes, performed the dedicatory services. After the building had been blessed both inside and outside fully 500 people assembled in the hall in the second story and listened to the addresses. Rev. Father Timothy O'Leary, S. J., delivered the dedicatory address; Father Foin the address of welcome, and Chas. Delone, Esq., spoke as the representative of the congregation.

FAMILY RE-UNION AND BIRTHDAY PARTY.—On Sunday, Sept. 3ad., Mrs. Henry Spangler, of Salem, Indiana, reached her 75th milestone. On the following Thursday, Sept. 7th, her husband, Mr. Henry Spangler, completed his 81st year. They have been married nearly fifty-eight years. A few weeks ago Mr. Spangler sent invitations to his children and grand-children to eat a birthday dinner with him. Three sons, seven daughters and eighteen grandchildren were present. Mr. Henry Bucher and wife, from near this place were there. Mrs. Bucher is Mr. Spangler's sister, whom he had not seen for 25 years.

Heist Motion for a New Trial.

The argument for a new trial in the Heist murder case was fixed for Monday, but owing to the illness of G. J. Benner, Esq., his senior counsel, was continued until to-morrow.

The following are the reasons on which the motion of a new trial is based:

The verdict was against the law and the evidence.

The verdict was against the weight of the evidence.

The Court erred in sustaining the challenge "for cause," made by the Commonwealth against jurymen Joseph A. Smith and Edward A. Feeser.

The Court erred in allowing the District Attorney on the voir dire of the jurymen to ask the question: "Can you convict a man of murder in the first degree on circumstancial evidence, alone"

The Court erred in reading from the testimony of Dr. A. O Scott, and in not reading the whole of his testimony, especially his remark that a sharper instrument than the hatchet shown him, made the wound in the chin and neck.

The Court erred in referring to the testimony of Dr. Glenn and Dr. A. O Scott as corroborating and agreeing with the testimony of Edward Reese, John Reese and Constable Peters as to hatchet fitting the wound.

The Court erred in admitting the stone upon insufficient proof, to go to the jury.

The defendant was greatly and unduly prejudiced by the exhibition of the basket of stained chips to the jury during the whole trial; which chips were subsequently withdrawn from the jury on failure of the Commonwealth to offer proof of the same.

The Court erred in allowing the map to go to the jury on insufficient proof of the path, thereon indicated.

The defendant was greatly and unduly prejudiced by the remark of the District Attorney, during his closing argument, that "if you acquit the defendant that is the end of it, there is no way of correcting it; but if you convict him he has other remedies;" and when corrected, by his further remark: "If you acquit him it ends here; if you convict him, it may not end here."

It was greatly to the prejudice of the defendant that the Commonwealth's Officer in his closing argument to the jury, quoted: "You should be convinced as jurors where you would be convinced as citizens, and you should doubt as jurors only where you would doubt as men."

The defendant and his counsel have been credibly informed, since the trial, that Carl Needy, Esq., of Waynesboro, Pa., who made the photograph and blue prints, will testify under oath, that the injury in the forehead of the deceased was apparently made by more than one blow, and that it was impossible to fit any weapon exhibited in the trial to said injury, and an opportunity is asked to present the sworn statement of said witness at the argument of this motion.

The defendant and his counsel have been credibly informed by eye witnesses, that on the way from the court-room to the hotel, the jury were repeatedly communicated with by outsiders without the consent of the defendant or his counsel.

The defendant avers that by reason of the incomplete proof of the corpus delicti and the failure of the Commonwealth to show blood stains on the body or the clothing of the deceased, there was not sufficient evidence to convict of murder in the first degree.

Improvements.

Mr. Robert Caldwell is erecting a residence on the lot recently purchased by him on Steinwehr avenue.

Messrs. J. H. Sanders & Son are putting up a very neat iron fence on East Middle street, adjoining their store.

The alley in rear of Baltimore street through property of the Benner heirs has been opened to travel by the removal of the Sweeney slaughter-house and the large shed on the Benner lot, which has been attached to the barn and placed under one roof with other small buildings.

Mr. Joseph Zinkand is building a dwelling house on Mummasburg street.

A. Brannreuter, of the Battlefield hotel, is tearing away the stable at rear of the hotel and will erect a large ice house on its site.

RESOLUTIONS.—At a regular meeting of Battlefield Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., the following was unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, The Almighty has in His infinite wisdom seen fit to call home our friend and Brother, H. M. Speese, and

WHEREAS, In view of the great loss our Council has sustained, be it therefore

Resolved, That it is but a simple duty, a simple act of justice to the memory of our deceased Brother to say that in his untimely death this Council loses one of its most active and valuable members, who enjoyed the respect and esteem of all who knew him.

Resolved, That to the stricken family we extend our heartfelt sympathy and recommend them for consolation to that great Councilor, who decrees all for the best.

Resolved, That as a mark of respect to the memory of our deceased Brother we drape our charter in morning for thirty days; that a copy of these resolutions be printed in the town papers and in the American, and also a copy be sent to the deceased Brother's family, and be spread upon the minutes

TO THE WORLD'S FAIR VIA B. & O. R. R.—The B. & O. R. R. offers a more complete and varied train service to Chicago than is offered by any other line. It has two daily express trains running via Cumberland and Pittsburg, two running via Deer Park, Oakland and Bellaire, and two running via Cincinnati and Indianapolis. Round-trip excursion tickets are sold for all these trains from Gettysburg at rate of $24 00. Train leaves Gettysburg at 10 20 a. m. and passengers can go one way and return the other. Tickets good going via Bellaire or Pittsburg and returning via Niagara Falls are sold at rate of $24.00. These excursion tickets will be honored on all B. & O. trains, without exception and without extra fare, until the close of the Exposition, and they are good for stop-over privileges at Deer Park, Mountain Lake Park, Oakland, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Niagara Falls.

Special excursion at $17 00 for the round-trip on Sept. 13 and 21. Special train leaves Hagerstown 11.10 a. m. For full information call on or address B & O. ticket office, C. W. MYERS, Agent, Gettysburg, Pa. 12.2t

Mrs. Jamison Murdered.

A dispatch of last week from Palatka, Fla., says:—Word has just been received here from Como, in Putnam county, fifteen miles south of here, that the wife of Captain Jamison, of that village, was murdered last Saturday night and her body burned before daylight Sunday morning.

Neighbors observed her house on fire, and a general alarm was given. Mrs. Jamison could not be found, and the ruins were thoroughly searched. At last her body was found burned to a crisp and with a long knife near it, and tracks were discovered in the wet soil leading to the house of a neighbor, and the shoe prints corresponded exactly with a pair of shoes found in the neighbor's house. He is a Kentuckian named Brentand and was arrested on suspicion.

Mrs. Jamison was the wife of Captain James H. Jamison, who had visited the World's Fair and was on his return when the terrible crime was committed. Captain Jamison was born near this place, his boyhood's home serving as a rebel field hospital during the battle. Mrs. Jamison, who was so cruelly murdered Saturday night week, was Miss Amanda Myers before her marriage, and lived with her parents at Hanover, Pa. She was married to Captain Jamison about eighteen years ago. With her husband she resided at the home in Florida where she was killed, for seventeen years. She used to come North to visit relatives nearly every summer. This year it was Captain Jamison's turn to make the trip, and he left the farm in charge of his wife. He was visiting his wife's sister in Hanover when the news of the tragedy reached him, and left at once for Florida.

From Fairfield.

In common with the rest of Adams county, we had a very heavy gust on Friday evening. The rain came down in torrents, accompanied by heavy thunder and almost incessant lightning; but we hear of no special damage in this vicinity. The corn in the fields is badly blown down, and the fodder will be very much damaged.

The early sown wheat is coming up nicely, but the ground will be too wet now to seed for several days.

Quite a goodly number of our citizens who either did not have the inclination to go, the time to spend, or the wherewithall to pay, to go to the World's Fair, did the next best thing and attended the Hanover Fair last week.

Our public schools in Hamiltonban township opened this morning, except Fairfield No. 1. The attendance of pupils is not as good as it should be, I presume on account of it being a little earlier in the season than usual. The Board of directors have adopted several new series of books and will doubtless adopt some plan by which the law in regard to furnishing free text books will be put in operation.

The Executors of Jeptha Dubs have sold the home farm in Highland township, containing about 140 acres, to Samuel Dubs, price $28 per acre. Farm No. 2 was bid to the same figure but was withdrawn.

Peter Kready is putting up a new house at Orrtanna.

Miss Agnes McCreary, of Gettysburg, is spending a few days with her friends here.

Miss Euphemia Knox, daughter of Chas. M. Knox, is on a visit to her friends in this vicinity.

Mrs. M. Wingert, and son, of Altoona, are spending a few days at Jas. W. Moore's. S.

A kind and loving father
Is sleeping sweetly now,
With no sign of care or sorrow
Upon his gentle brow.
He has gone where earthly troubles
Will worry him no more;
He has gone to meet the loved ones
Upon the other shore.
He has left us here to follow
When all our troubles cease:
Oh, may we meet in heaven
And dwell with him in peace.
BY HIS DAUGHTER.

How's this Weather?

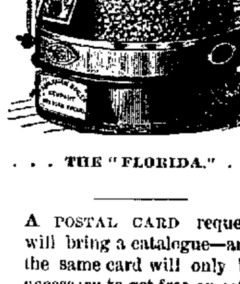
IT may suit you, but be the exact opposite of that wanted by some other person. Could Nature's moods be transformed to suit the many desires of different natures, more alarm would be created by thoughts of the world's end than all the warnings thundered forth from the pulpit.

BUT very few persons enjoy that one wild, grand change of Nature — Winter — with its chilly breath and icy fingers. Many have, and still more will make, all possible provision to ward off its cold blast.

IN no way can this be so economically or so comfortably done as with a good—best—Hot Water or Steam Heater; with a heater that makes every room in the house, from garret to cellar, suggest the balmy clime of Florida.

AND no heater on the market to-day so thoroughly does this—so economically does this—as the "Florida"—a heater that as a fixture is as solid in the homes of all lovers of genuine comfort as the Rock of Gibraltar.

EVERY prudent man provides for a "rainy day." Every prudent householder will disregard the present mild weather, and will send for a catalogue of the "Florida."



. . . THE "FLORIDA." . . .

A POSTAL CARD request will bring a catalogue—and the same card will only be necessary to get free an estimate for your house, if it has five or fifty rooms.

Fall on the Farm.

TURNIPS, parsnips, carrots and beets may be stored in pits outside of the barn, or in mounds. One of the methods that has been tried with success is to store them in bins, using dry sand to fill in between them. This method permits of using them at any time, while, if they are stored in pits, they may be sealed up by the frost.

THE usual mode of storing cabbages for winter is to bury them, heads down and roots up. A better method is to place them close together in a furrow, root down, then throwing the dirt to them and adding another layer of dirt until a compact bed of cabbages is made. Now cover with straw or hay and place cornstalks on the hay. When wanted for use remove a portion of the hay, cut off the heads desired and leave the stalks. In the spring remove the hay and the cabbage stalks will produce early sprouts, or "greens." All that is necessary is to keep the cabbages from thawing too suddenly. If buried heads down they soon begin to rot after the frost is gone and the rains come in the spring.

REGARDING the poisoning of fruit by spraying with arsenical compounds it is estimated that a man must eat several barrels of apples at one time in order to get a fatal dose.

IN storing away onions for winter spread them in thin layers, first allowing them to become thoroughly dry after harvesting. Do not disturb them afterward. If onions should become frozen during the winter they will be but little damaged if left undisturbed.

FRUIT that is shipped to market in barrels, crates or large boxes may be made to give a larger profit if shipped in neat baskets or small boxes instead, and the cost of the basket will be but a small sum compared with the increased prices secured by the more attractive appearance of the fruit.

A YOUNG colt is an animal that seems to meet with more accidents than any other and should be carefully looked after until weaned.

WHEN a hog is compelled to eat a portion of his food in the shape of filth he will not increase as rapidly as when fed on clean and wholesome food. Many supposed outbreaks of hog cholera may be traced to overfeeding on corn exclusively and lack of cleanliness.

SELECT the best ears of corn for seed. Do not remove the husks if it can be avoided, but fasten the ears together in bunches and hang up in a dry place so as to protect from mice. Dampness is injurious to seed corn, and the ears saved for seed should be thoroughly dry before storing.

THE farmers who complain that sheep do not pay are wool growers. When the farmer makes a specialty of mutton sheep they always give good returns.

PUBLIC tests bring out the actual work of a cow. Among the Jerseys at the World's Fair is "Little Goldie," who is claimed to have made 34 pounds 8½ ounces of butter at home, but the best she can do at Chicago is 14 pounds in one week. The test at Chicago is playing havoc with private records.

THE winters in this climate are mild at certain times, and stock can then find exercise, but some preparation should be made to protect during severe weather. An open shed is an excellent place for stock, as it affords plenty of fresh air without exposure to winds and rains, and costs but little. This is the season for building.

A LITTLE paint on the buildings adds greatly to the appearance, preserves the wood, and gives an additional value to the whole farm.

CLOVER hay, if cut fine and scalded or steamed, is relished by all classes of stock, poultry included, and is the cheapest and best of all foods, especially if fed in connection with ground grain. It greatly supplies the place of green weather. An open shed is an excellent food, and is invigorating if fed warm on a cold day. Retain your hay for winter use instead of selling it.

THE cow that receives the same allowance of food daily may be better than is known. There is no such thing as an allowance of food for a productive cow. She should have as much as she can eat at every meal.

SALT is beneficial to animals in many ways. It is destructive to some forms of parasites, and, when sulphur is given occasionally with salt, worms in the intestines may be prevented or destroyed.

FORMERLY there was no mode of harvesting corn but to cut down the stalks by hand, but the corn harvester has come to stay and is saving labor. But little work is now necessary in growing a crop of corn that cannot be done with horse power and at but a small outlay for labor compared with the work of former years.

IF the stock for market comes into the winter fat and in good condition from the pasture it will pay to feed liberally and pushed them forward for market. Never allow a pound that has been gained to be lost, as it doubles the cost of production.

FALL pigs should be farrowed this month so as to give them a start before winter. If pigs are farrowed during cold weather they are liable to be stunted and make but slow growth.

Is the Nest Egg an Advantage?

A Tennessee correspondent of Farm Poultry thus replied to the query, Is the nest egg an advantage?

I would say that according to my observation the nest egg is not a necessity, and not knowing but what its absence from the nest might be more agreeable with some individual hen I leave the egg out of some nests. I have a variety of nests. They are placed in different places, and though some nests are better patronized than others yet there is that individuality with some hens that the philosophy of nestmaking is yet too much in embryo to be formulated. Some hens discard the prepared nest and prefer laying on the ground. As soon as I have a vacant hover I place it in the yard, and some hen will take possession of it, though it contains no nest egg.

For all this I am confident that using a nest egg has its advantages. As a rule of life, or disposition, or taste, or some other sociable inclination, the majority of hens take to nests containing a nest egg even when the flock range is large. And a majority of this majority prefer laying in a nest already occupied, though other nests may be within easy reach. The advantage of the nest egg is shown by prolonging the laying disposition of the hen. The disposition of the hen is to lay a clutch to sit on. If the eggs are undisturbed, the hen will commence to sit at the tenth to thirteenth egg, but if the eggs are removed as often as laid, leaving only one, the hen is likely to lay 20 or more before her broodiness forces her to give up, or if not of the broody kind to quit the Sisyphean effort to increase. I prefer for nest eggs the egg guard. It is as easy to raise as a dipper guard. They are not so cold in winter as the porcelain, and being inexpensive can be often renewed if necessary.

At a Dinner — when you have eaten heartily, you should take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Your liver needs the gentle stimulating, as well as invigorating, effect of these tiny, sugar - coated Pellets.

If you feel drowsy, dull, languid, inexpressibly tired or debilitated; if you're no appetite and frequent headaches or dizziness, a furred or coated tongue—it proves that you're bilious. In that case you should carry in your vest-pocket a small sealed vial of these Pellets. They are anti - bilious granules, which act in a prompt and natural way, without griping. So beneficial and lasting is their effect that the makers can afford to guarantee that they will give you satisfaction, or they'll return your money.

There's no case of Catarrh so hopeless that Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cannot cure. The makers will pay $500 reward for any incurable case.
